WORKING FOR EVERYONE: Careers in Government and Public Administration

As our nation faces increasingly complex challenges, America needs the best and brightest working on its behalf. From city hall to the Capitol of South Carolina, the Army colonel to the elected President of the United States, government and public administration jobs are filled by people who are dedicated to helping ensure that our modern democracy – with all its complexities – works for everyone. From medicine to the military, agriculture to aeronautics, office administration and information technology, nearly every area of employment can be found in government and public administration.

THE GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION CAREER CLUSTER

The Government and Public Administration Career Cluster is divided into seven majors.

They are as follows:

- Governance
- National Security
- Foreign Service
- Planning
- Revenue and Taxation
- Regulation
- Public Management and Administration

Each of these majors requires knowledge and skills that can be acquired in the military or at postsecondary institutions, which range from private for-profit colleges that teach specific office and administrative skills to two-year institutions, such as Midlands Technical College and to four-year colleges, such as the University of South Carolina.

GOVERNANCE: People who work in jobs within the Governance major include the officials elected or appointed to government positions responsible for making and executing public policy, spanning from local to state to national positions.

IF YOU CHOOSE GOVERNANCE AS YOUR CAREER MAJOR, YOU MAY BE A PART OF:

- Creating and passing laws that govern our local area, state and nation
- Working with constituents or special interest groups with specific concerns, such as the environment to local traffic to national security
- Creating and working within a coalition of elected officials, agency leaders and developers to aid with economic development
- Lobbying and being a liaison between agencies and legislative bodies

“Joining the South Carolina National Guard provides opportunities like no other to serve your state and nation. No matter what your role as a Guard Soldier or Airman, you will feel a sense of accomplishment in doing something to make a difference in your community. We are neighbors helping neighbors.”

*— Major General Robert E. Livingston, Jr.
The Adjutant General for South Carolina*

“People employed in government and public administration work on meeting the needs of all citizens in a variety of environments. Public servants endeavor to provide critical services including disease prevention, public safety and security, education, transportation, veterans’ care, national defense, clean water, waste management, environmental protection, airline safety, disaster preparedness and many more. These activities require planning, execution, oversight and dedication. Therefore, there will always be numerous, exciting careers for people interested in providing these important services.”
